EASTERN PARK, BROOKLYN, Aug. 3.-Boston is the card that the Brooklynites are scheduled to dally with today. The fact that each club has one game to its credit of the present series adds to the interest to-day in playing off the rubber.

The unfavorable condition of the weather has had its effect upon the attendance. About 2,000 persons are present, ready to accept rain checks if they are issued. The Bostons seemed full of ginger in their practice and none the worse for a day's outing yesterday at Rockaway Beach.

The batting order to-day is:

RAIDED BY BURGLARS. DEAD HEAT

Harlem Real-Estate Dealer's Son Shot in the Leg.

Death by One of the Gang.

One of the Thieves Captured After a Fight with the Police.

The three-story and basement residence of James Cochrane, a real estate dealer, burglars this afternoon. William G. Cochrane, the nineteen-year-old son, who was the only one in the ouse at the time, was shot in the left leg and severely wounded by one of the burgiars in his endeavors to escape. The were at least two burgiars in the

He fell to the floor semi-conscious from the shock.

He could remember, however, seeing a short, thick-set man, with a black slouch hat and a blue serge coat, rush out of the front basement door.

He thinks that this man was white. A. Peterson, a man of all work about the house, saw this man running up Madison avenue, but lost trace of him after following him for a block. It is believed that the burgiars did not get away with any property.

Fitteen minutes later Mrs. George Nelson, the wife of a lawyer at 234 Broadway, who was standing in front of her house, at 38 West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, saw a colored man coming out of her flat, carrying a bundle. She recognized the outer wrapping as a pillow case belonging to her.

"Where did you get that? It is nine!" she shricked. "Where did you get that? It is mine!" she shrieked.

The colored man caught her by the throat and threatened to blow her brains out if she uttered another word.

Mrs. Nelson screamed and then fell in a swoon in front of her door. The colored man dashed through the house, out of the rear door, and over the fences into One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street.

Policeman Hesch heard Mrs. Nelson's cry, and saw the fleeing negro as he ran out of One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street into Fifth avenue. Detective Frank Prince, who had already heard of the attempted burgiary in Cochrane's house, joined in the chase.

The negro, on discovering that he was being pursued, dropped his bundle and fled across a vacant lot into the rear yard of 28 West One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street. Willie Freeman, ten years old, was sitting on the rear steps of this house, and he boidity called out to the negro to hait. The latter pulled out a revolver, pointed it at the boy and said he would kill him if he told the policemen a word about it.

The boy dropped over the fence into the next yard and the negro ran into the basement of No. 28.

On gaining One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street he ran into the basement of No. 24 and hid himself under a table in the dining-room. Willie Freeman had kept his eye on the negro and told Detective Price where he was. Price and the other officer entered the house and found him.

He showed fight and was clubbed into submission. He was taken to the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station-house, where he said his name was Frank Smith, a waiter, twenty-eight years old, and living at 10 Lawrence street.

NO CHANGE OF A FIGHT SENATE BILL

Corbett and Jackson Meet at the Grand Union Hotel.

Pugilists Within an Ace of Coming

Peter Insists on 20 Rounds in England, Jim Says "No."

Peter Jackson arrived in town on the Chicago limited, reaching the Grand Central Station at 1.45 o'clock this afternoon. But few people were on hand to welcome him, and he passed through Question Brought Up Under Spethe crowd as little noted almost as the rest of the passengers by that train. The Australian was not accompanied by Parson Davies, but Tom O'Rourke,

George Dixon's manager, met him at sumed charge of Peter's affairs and answered for the big pugilist. Peter looks in good physical condition his eye is bright, his big frame well covered and his movements agile and alert. He went immediately across the street to the Grand Union Hotel, where a room had been engaged by telegraph. Earlier in the day Champion Jim Cor bett was a bus" man. He arrived at Manager W. A. Brady's office befor noon after vain inquiries regarding Jack-early. To an "Evening World" reporter met him in that office he said that he was anxious to close with Jackson as soon after his arrival as possible. and the sooner the match is clinched the better I will be satisfied. I leave town to-morrow and do not see why a meeting cannot be arranged this afteroon and the thing settled right away. "Personally, I don't believe Peter means business. To my mind, he has split with 'Parson' Davies and is trying to manage his own affairs."

Later Peter was seen in his room and O'Rourke explained that he had met the colored purilist on behalf of "Parson" Davies, with whom the puglist's relations were entirely friendly. To "The Evening World" reporter Jackson said: "I am too tired to meet Gorbett to-day and want to get rested up before I talk. I have come all the way from San Francisco for an interview, and want to make a mat. h before I go back. I have been trying for six or seven months to make this match without success.

"I will meet Mr. Corbett to-morrow at R. K. Fox's office between 11 and 12 o'clock. If this doesn't suit him I can't help it. He is only going to Asbury Park, and I have come 3,000 miles to see him. I am satisfied we can close arrangements in ten minutes after we get together."

"Will you fight in the South?" asked "Personally, I don't believe Peter ered to Corbett he called a cab and drove at once to the Grand Union Hotel to meet Jackson.

Corbett, Billy Delaney and W. A. Brady arrived at the Grand Union about 3.15 P. M., and went immediately to Jackson's room. Corbett and Jackson eyed each other and then shook hands. Corbett said:

"Jackson, I'm glad to meet you. I came here to arrange for a fight."

"Oh, you're still bluffing, are you?" said Peter.

Corbett clinched his right fist and made a move as if he would punch the negro, but men stepped in between them, and argued that what fighting they did should be done in a ring.

"If you mean to fight me," said Corbett, talking over the shoulders of some friends, "we can arrange this thing in ten minutes."

"Oh," said Jackson, "If you wanted to meet me you could have done so long ago. You could have had a fight at Coney Island. That fight of yours with Mitchell in Jacksonville was the death blow to pugilism in America.

"I'll fight you before the National Sporting Club, of London. I've as much right to name the place as you.

"I wont fight in the South on account of the racial distinction. I won't take chances."

"Jackson," said Corbett, "you're wrong."

"I wont fight in the South on account of the racial distinction. I won't take chances."

"Jackson," said Corbett, "you're wrong. You'll get as square a deal there as in any place in the world. I'll give you the stake, the purse, everything if you fight there and are molesied on account of your color."

"No," said Peter, "I wor't. It would be as much as my life would be worth to win from you there."

"The two men kept arguing on these lines for some time, each getting hot to win from you there."

"The two men kept arguing on these lines for some time, each getting hot done. You won't go to England; I won't go South. There you are.

"If a club springs up in the North that can pull off the fight, I'll sign."

"Jackson," said Corbett, "I'll fight you any place on the top of the earth, that can pull off the fight, I'll sign."

"Jackson," said Corbett, "I'll fight you won't go to England; I won't go South. There you are.

"If a club springs up in the North that can pull off the fight, I'll sign."

"Jackson," said Corbett, "I'll fight you fight in the springs of the earth, that can pull off the fight, I'll sign."

"Jackson," said Corbett, "I'll fight you any place on the top of the earth, to a finish. I know how good a man you are, and I doubt whether I could win in twenty rounds. In a finish fight, I know, I can whip you, for I am younger and just as clever as you.

"Now, I want you to give in as much to me in these negotiations as I am giving to you. Sign for a fight and I'll do everything that is fair and upright."

"My proposition has been made." said Jackson. "National Sporting Club, twenty rounds, nothing else."

"You don't want to tight," said Corbett, leaving the rounds at the Caucus.

SEPARATE BILLS TO FOLLOW.

The New Measures Will Provide for Free Sugar, Free Iron Ore. Free Coal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13,-In accordance with the decree of this morning's Rules Committee, the House has now before it the question of receding from its disagreement with the Senate Tariff bill, and passing that measure, which will then need only the President's sig-veto, to become a law. seemed to be unquestionable authority, that the President would neither nor veto the bill, but would let it be-come a law under the ten days' clause of the statutes. It seemed at one time to-day that the programme of the Democratic managers to have action in the House immediately follow the action of the caucus would be thwarted. Mr. Outhwaite, of the Rules Committee, was out of town, and there was a deadlock between Messrs. Crisp and Catchings, Democrats, and Messrs. Reed and Burrows, Republicans.

It seemed probable that further proceed-ings must be left till to-morrow. At 2 o'clock, however, Mr. Outhwaite arrived, and at once a meeting of the Committee on Rules was called.

At 1.20 the meeting of the Committee on Rules ended and Mr. Catchings (Dem., Miss.) immediately entered the hall and presented the rule.

The special order provided, first, that immediately after the adoption of the order it would be in order to consider ferrees on the Tariff bill from the further duty of considering that measure, and that the House recede from its disagreement in gross to ate amendments to after to consider bills for free coal, free iron ore, free sugar and free barbed wire. The resolution allowed two hours debate on the tariff resolution and thirty minutes each on the separate bills, the previous question to be considered as ordered without further debate at the Mr. Reed made a parliamentary objection to the procedure, claiming Tariff bill was not before the House. Speaker Crisp held that the resolution was in order and before the House. The previous question was thereupon ordered without division. The special order from the Rules Committee was adopted—176 yeas to 97 nays. Tom Johnson, of Ohio, and Warner, of New York, were among the negatives.

Upon the announcement of the vote Mr. Reed made the point of order that the bill was not before the House. The Speaker answered that the bill was then on the Speaker's table.

Mr. Reed said he did not see how that could be, but it appears that the House conferrees had placed the bill in the Speaker's hands as soon as the resolution was adopted. The two hours' debate then began, controlled by Mr. Wilson for the Demo-cratic side and Mr. Reed on the Republican side.
